Executive Director's Message

As I look back on the year, I am humbled by the spirit of collaboration in our partners and the community's response to the work we do.

The 2017-18 year was noteworthy as we celebrated the 10th anniversary of the Art Farm exhibition and gala. We were able to publish a retrospective detailing 10 years of farm visits and art creation.

Our partnership with the County of Yolo expanded this year with the development and adoption of a cultural center at the Gibson House in Woodland. We look forward to connecting, talking, and creating alongside the community for future developments at the Gibson Museum and Cultural Center.

Our arts education programs are growing and adapting to new student populations, and our first multi-school Poetry Out Loud competition was held with the winner competing at the state level. Student work created at Cesar Chavez Community School was exhibited in May in downtown Woodland, with many of the artworks being purchased by community members.

The "Blues in the VFW" veteran engagement program culminated in West Sacramento and Davis with concerts featuring veterans and professional blues musicians. Our I SEE YOU project continued in Davis, West Sacramento, and Woodland, providing art workshops for people experiencing homelessness.

Our community art exhibition space, Gallery 625, held 10 First Friday receptions that celebrated the work of local and regional artists.

We strive to serve all in Yolo County through the arts. Whether you are a student, artist, farmer, veteran, experiencing homelessness, or an art lover – we are excited to continue creating memories with you.

Thank you for being a part of the YoloArts community.

Financials

The income and expense summary (left) shows revenue sources and expense allocation for FY2017-18. Income through grants and partner match account for 68% of total income. With financial commitments (program matching funds) from our partners, we are able to leverage state and private foundation funding for arts education and engagement in Yolo County. It is a privilege to build sustainability locally for support of creative expression – we are proud of this commitment to Yolo County’s art economy.

The three-year look of income and expenses (below) shows continued stability in YoloArts’ overall income and expenses.
