THU, APRIL 25 | 8am-12pm and SAT, APRIL 27 | 8am-12pm

Dear Artists and Supporters,

This month we have the good fortune to visit Good Humus Produce, the birthplace of the Art and Ag Project. In 2006, owner Annie Main began sharing the beauty of her farm with artists so they could capture the landscapes and early morning sunrises that she experienced every day.

In time, neighboring farms invited artists onto their land. And over the last 12 years, through YoloArts Art and Ag Project, artists have visited more than 100 farms throughout Yolo County, capturing the unique beauty of these rural landscapes and in the process raising awareness about the importance of farmland preservation.

On this 30-acre organic farm you will find mixed orchards, California native hedgerows, cover crops, annual and perennial herbs, flowers and vegetables all set against the backdrop of the rolling green hills of Capay's Hungry Hollow.

Last year Annie and her husband Jeff celebrated their longtime goal of putting Good Humus under an agricultural easement, which will ensure that their farm will be held in perpetuity for farming and food production for generations to come at an affordable price to the future farmers.

In addition to farming for the past 43 years, Annie started a farm visit program in 2001 and became involved with school district lunch programs, farm to school visits, and summer programs with inner city teens.

Most recently Annie's daughter Ali came back to the farm and has joined Annie in her flower business, not only bringing flowers to the local stores, businesses, and farmers markets but also creating custom arrangements for special occasions.

HAPPENING IN THE BARN!

March at Valley Oak Wool Mill + Frate Sole

THANK YOU to Marvail McWilliams who spun some yarn and told a few tales about Valley Oak Wool Mill-AND- to Andrea and Jim Mayer of Frate Sole who provided olive oil tastings of their delicious Tuscan blend. Rain or shine, over 70 artists enjoyed these two different farms and learned so much. We are grateful for the time you took to share your passion for what you do with us!
